Little I Robot is the world’s largest provider and platform operator of Chinese-language AI robot technologies. Its core technology is AI semantic recognition, which provides AI language comprehension systems with the ability to “think”. It also offers capabilities including automatic language processing through semantic analysis and comprehension, knowledge-building and self-learning. The system uses various forms of human-machine interaction, such as text, speech, images and body sensation, to hear, speak and answer questions.

Little I Robot uses its AI semantic recognition system to develop solutions for all industry applications, including smart customer service for telecommunications, finance and e-government; smart marketing for e-commerce; robotics for smart homes and smart entertainment services; and operations and maintenance related to smart information databases.

As at 16 December 2015, Everbright Qingdao Fund had completed four investment projects. Shanghai Zhizhen Network Technology Co. Ltd. (Little I Robot) is its first to be listed on the New OTC BB Market.
